DORIS DUKE ORAL HISTORY PROJECT

CHONTAL HISTORY

RECORDED BY PAUL R. TURNER

Tape 1, Side 2 was recorded and translated from the original Highland Chontal by Paul R. Turner at the village of San Matias, Petacoltepec, Oaxaca, Mexico September, 1968. It describes the methods used by a faith healer in curing his patients. The beliefs held by the curer are brought out in the ensuing conversation between Mr. Turner and the informant, Domian Flores.

Tape 1, Side 1 was recorded at the same location and describes the religious beliefs and customs of the local residents in San Matias and their relation to the Catholic teachings.

Tape 2 is an interview with Clemente Zarate of San Matias. In the interview he tells of the origin of the Chontals and their myths. A description of the belief in witches and witchcraft is told by the informant on side 2 of this tape.

Tape 3 - The informant Porifirio Nicholas Flores tells the Chontal version of the Deluge. He also relates the story of Montezuma and Cortez as it is told by the Chontal. The creation of the village of San Matias is described as being the original town after man's creation.

Tape 4 continues the story of the creation of San Matias. This myth closely parallels the story of original sin as it was told by the early missionaries.

NOTES

This volume contains 61 pages of transcription from the original taped recordings.

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTE FOR ARCHIVES FOLDERS A-271
A-404
A-767

These three folders contain related material and some duplication of materials. These materials came to the archives from different sources at different times. I have considered the possibility of putting them together and making a single description of the contents to improve the present descriptions, but have decided against this, because the materials are so confused such a project would take much time and the potential for improvement is not sufficient to justify the time.

There are two basic manuscripts. The first is entitled SAN JOSE DE TUCSON, ITS HISTORY AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXPLORATION, edited by Terah L. Smiley. It deals only with a mission site on the west side of the Santa Cruz River just south of Congress Street, near downtown Tucson. The manuscript includes sections by Dobyms, Smiley, Jones and Barter. As I understand the history of the manuscript, it was put together in the early 1950's, but was never published. Later, Dobyms apparently pulled out of the project and has published parts of his section on Tucson history, but the remainder is still unpublished.

The second manuscript is entitled HISTORY AND ARCHAEOLOGY IN TUCSON, edited by William W. Wasley. This was an attempt to pickup the material from Smiley's manuscript and combine it with an account of archaeological exploration of the Tucson Presidio site. The section on the Presidio is by Alan P. Olson. This account is notable especially for the discovery of a pithouse remains beneath the Presidio wall.

These three folders contain correspondence, newspaper clippings, several drafts and parts of drafts, sketch maps, and field notes. Much of the material is not dated, so it is difficult to determine priority of the draft manuscripts, author of editorial changes and marginal notes, etc. Mainly for this reason I leave the material as it stands for future editors to unravel. I understand that William J. Robinson is now editing some or all of these papers for publication.

The reader should also see the article, TUCSON: PUEBLO, PRESIDIO, AND AMERICAN CITY, by Cameron Greenleaf and Andrew Wallace (Arizoniana III:2, Summer, 1962) where evidence is given that there never was a Tucson mission called San Jose.

Pascua

(April 5, 1939) and

(Feb. 7, 1945 - March 6, 1948)

These field notes contain primarily information on Yaqui beliefs, religion, mythology, and ceremonial activities based on interviews by the author with the Yaqui, Refugio Savala, and many others. Ceremonial groups (Fariseos, Caballeros, Pascolas, Matachinis, and Masos) are given special attention and the Military Society, chapayekas, and maestros are also discussed. The Lent and Easter ceremonies are described in detail. Visits by the author to friends at Pascua Village reveal details about community life. Scattered Yaqui vocabulary is given and the informant, Savala, describes Yaqui beliefs concerning spirits, witchcraft, enchantment, mandas and Yaqui music and dances, etc.

Note: The field notes for the period of December 1946 through June 1947 are recorded on 5"x8" sheets and are located in Archives folder A-346.

TABLE OF CONTENTS¹

Most of the Dolores Papago materials were microfilmed (n.s. 134.2m) by Kroeber in 1951, with two copies. One went to Dolores' widow, Silvia Beyer; the Department's copy was borrowed by Madeleine Mathiot in 1960 in order that the Texts might be edited for the University of California Publications in Linguistics (by arrangement with Mary R. Haas--which never materialized). Many of the notebooks have notes attached (not by Kroeber; apparently by Miss Mathiot) comparing the microfilm (134.2m) with J. A. Mason's (unpublished) Papago texts.

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTE FOR ARCHIVES FOLDERS A-271
A-404
A-767

These three folders contain related material and some duplication of materials. These materials came to the archives from different sources at different times. I have considered the possibility of putting them together and making a single description of the contents to improve the present descriptions, but have decided against this, because the materials are so confused such a project would take much time and the potential for improvement is not sufficient to justify the time.

There are two basic manuscripts. The first is entitled SAN JOSE DE TUCSON, ITS HISTORY AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL EXPLORATION, edited by Terah L. Smiley. It deals only with a mission site on the west side of the Santa Cruz River just south of Congress Street, near downtown Tucson. The manuscript includes sections by Dobyms, Smiley, Jones and Barter. As I understand the history of the manuscript, it was put together in the early 1950's, but was never published. Later, Dobyms apparently pulled out of the project and has published parts of his section on Tucson history, but the remainder is still unpublished.

The second manuscript is entitled HISTORY AND ARCHAEOLOGY IN TUCSON, edited by William W. Wasley. This was an attempt to pick up the material from Smiley's manuscript and combine it with an account of archaeological exploration of the Tucson Presidio site. The section on the Presidio is by Alan P. Olson. This account is notable especially for the discovery of a pithouse remains beneath the Presidio wall.

These three folders contain correspondence, newspaper clippings, several drafts and parts of drafts, sketch maps, and field notes. Much of the material is not dated, so it is difficult to determine priority of the draft manuscripts, author of editorial changes and marginal notes, etc. Mainly for this reason I leave the material as it stands for future editors to unravel. I understand that William J. Robinson is now editing some or all of these papers for publication.

The reader should also see the article, TUCSON: PUEBLO, PRESIDIO, AND AMERICAN CITY, by Cameron Greenleaf and Andrew Wallace (Arizoniana III:2, Summer, 1962) where evidence is given that there never was a Tucson mission called San Jose.
